NASS's Election Initiative →

In Nov. 2023, NASS officially re-launched our #TrustedInfo public election education effort as #TrustedInfo2024! The continued goal of this nonpartisan initiative is to communicate to the American people that election officials are their trusted sources for accurate, up-to-date election information.

THE “WHY” OF #TRUSTEDINFO2024

“When voters need accurate election information, my answer is always clear: turn to Chief Election Officials.”

Hon. Scott Schwab
NASS President
Kansas Secretary of State

“Rapidly advancing technology using artificial intelligence will likely allow for more convincing false information and increase how fast in correct information spreads. I encourage voters to do their part by only sharing credible information from our offices...”

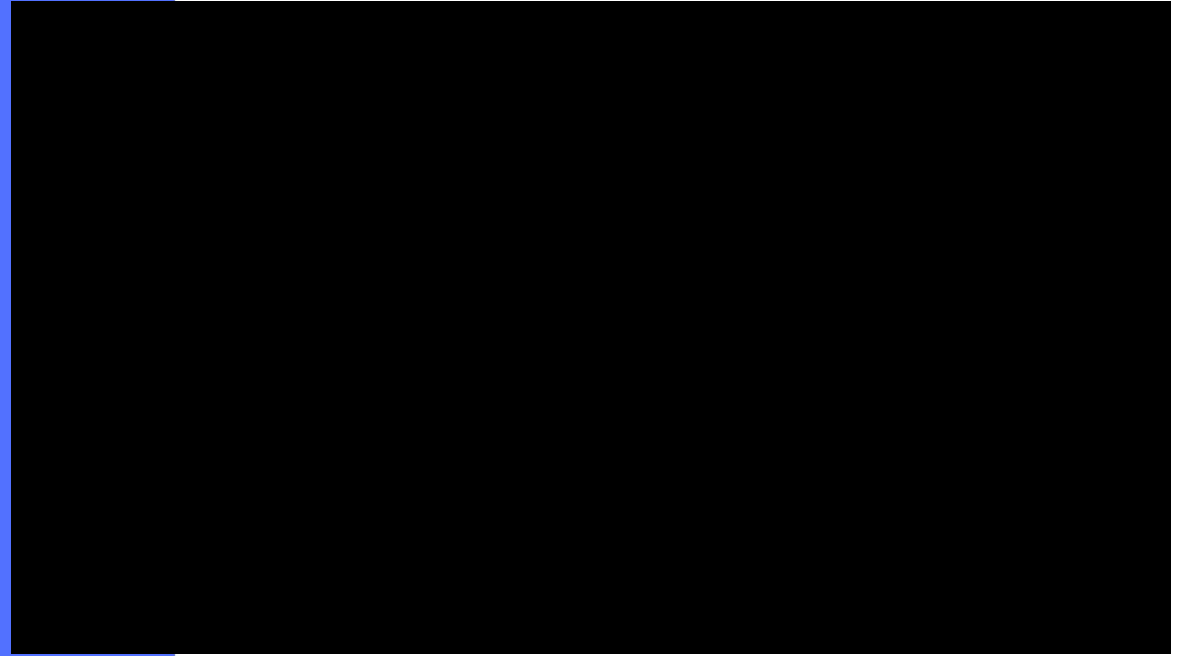

Hon. Steve Simon
NASS President-elect
Minnesota Secretary of State

Secretary of State Gregg M. Amore Joins National Association of Secretaries of State in #TrustedInfo2024 Voter Education Effort

PROVIDENCE, RI – Secretary of State Gregg M. Amore today joined fellow members of the National Association of Secretaries of State (NASS) in the #TrustedInfo2024 voter education effort to encourage citizens to look to election officials as the trusted sources of election information ahead of the 2024 elections.

"Despite misinformation that aims to confuse voters and create distrust in our election systems, the simple truth is that our elections are now more secure, and more scrutinized, than they have ever been," said Secretary Amore. "I am proud to join my fellow NASS members in developing a national voter education effort for the 2024 election cycle, and I encourage all Rhode Islanders to reach out directly to my office for more information."
